CANADA'S PRIME MINISTERS GALLERY

An Exploration of Leadership and the Development of a Country

New Federation House, building on the first volume in its Canadian Leadership Collection, will mount an exhibition of the official portraits of the prime ministers entitled “Canada’s Prime Ministers” gallery. The exhibition, modelled along the lines of the Smithsonian Institution’s “America’s Presidents” gallery in Washington, will be housed in an existing museum or public space and could eventually travel across the country. The large-format digital reimaging of the Prime Ministers portraits will be a major undertaking that will confirm the exhibition as one of the primary public attractions in the country. “Canada’s Prime Ministers” gallery recounts Canadian history through the individuals who have shaped the country, and will also include multiple images of the past 23 Canadian Prime Ministers from Sir John A. Macdonald to Justin Trudeau.
